MYRON WHITNEY'S RECITAL. Myron W. Whitney, ir., in a song re-cital at Mendelssohn Hall yesterday afternoon, created a decidedly pleasant effernoon, created a decidedly pleasant impression. His voice is rich, except perhaps in some of its upper tones; sincere and agreeable, and his method for the most part masterly. His programme, whose chief flaw was dearth of contrast, included two Debussy sengs, and several Italian numbers. Many of his selections were refreshingly unfamiliar hers.

From that lovely aria, which is sung almost at the very may visit the limit | beginning, to the farewell duet in the crypt just before the last curtain, he vas almost all that could be desired.

Mr. Bammerstein's production of the pera a year ago, early in his first season, was most impressive, and with every succeeding performance its excellence, was maintained. The glory of Verdi's work, with its combination of beautiful melody, stirring musical and dramatic climaxes, fine orchestration, superb spectacle, intense human in terest and appealing tragedy, is un-aterpretation last night. The third set was thrilling, and for that Nordica, one of the very best im-personators of the title part, should get much of the credit. While her voice has lost a good deal of its power and beauty, she summoned all the resources of her art (which are many) to the ren-dering of the "O Mia Patria" and the
